

Vincent Cirasole offers a wealth of practical tips on how to create an organic garden, soil preparation, seed starting, planting and good culture techniques such as watering, pest and weed control during the growing season. He will also discuss such topics as how plants and soil interact, composting and crop rotation.

Now residing in Rochester, NH, Cirasole taught physical education and organic gardening in New York before relocating to the Granite State. He is a Master Gardener, experienced gardening teacher, commercial vegetable grower, and organic growing enthusiast. In addition, Cirasole has recently published a book, "How to Grow a Vegetable Garden that Cannot Fail."
